Lorraine Schettino

Business Manager, Boston City Council

Lorraine Schettino has served the City Council on Central Staff for nearly 15 years, including having served the City for over 22 years. Her role as Boston City Council's Business Manager is fast moving work, and Lorraine keeps up with 13 Council offices--each moving at their own whirlwind pace.

Whether dropping off paystubs, explaining salary procedures, or helping onboard summer interns, Lorraine's help is truly indispensable. She needs to know every detail of her job and has no peers in this regard. Her multiple hats span from human resources, to procurement, to customer service.

As the makeup of the Boston City Council changes with every election, long-term employees like Lorraine serve a vital function of preserving institutional knowledge and setting the tone for incoming councilors and their staff.

In her previous position as Receptionist and Office Manager, Lorraine was the first point of contact for constituents coming into City Council. In her current position as Business Manager, Lorraine is the first point of contact for all employees coming on board.

She has spent years cultivating sincere relationships and prudently managing and executing her responsibilities, which has built a knowledge base that ensures Lorraine always has the answer to any problem in the building.

Thank you, Lorraine Schettino, for serving as a critical guide to new staff members, interns, and visitors. You are very deserving of a 2024 Shattuck Public Service Award.

Gary Marino

Police Officer, Boston Police Department

Officer Gary Marino joined the Boston Police Department as a cadet in 1995 and served in that role until being appointed a recruit officer in 1998. Upon graduation, he was assigned to East Boston, where in 2011, he was made District A-7's Community Service Officer based on his community policing philosophy and excellent record.

In 2019, Gary founded and has been the driving force behind a unique program to connect the youth of East Boston and other neighborhoods through hockey: the A-7 Boston Police Department Youth Hockey Skills

Program. Gary also designed a dry land program for the offseason to keep the players active and maintain the connections they've built.

The greatest barrier to entry for young hockey players is the cost of equipment. In partnership with the DCR hockey rink in East Boston, other police officers who are hockey players, and friends and family in the East Boston community, Gary provided all the necessary equipment for the youth of East Boston to play. The hockey program allows East Boston youth to learn and develop in a game that many of them never thought they would have a chance to participate in.

The hockey program recently went beyond East Boston, opening free city-wide ice hockey skill training.

Thank you, Officer Gary Marino. Your relentless dedication to the youth of East Boston will have an impact for the foreseeable future. Congratulations on your 2024 Shattuck Award.
